Godly Rituals project (modern creative jazz)

Godly Rituals is a cycle of 12 compositions by Odysséas Manidákis, which sway between the melodic worlds of classical music, contemporary jazz, and traditional music from the eastern Mediterranean. The core of the ensemble which performs these pieces are Odysséas Manidákis (composition, piano/synth, bouzouki, Greek lute) and Marco Mrcela (drums, percussion). The pieces are inspired by the myths and narratives surrounding the gods of Greek antiquity, driven by the duo's enthusiasm of performing music together. Each piece is dedicated to a god and serves as a musical portrait of that deity. Our aim is to open a portal to the mythical cosmos and, through it, reflect on the complexity of our modern world. Our concerts often incorporate poetry readings, storytelling, and a touch of scenic dramaturgy. With Godly Rituals, we challenge ourselves to strike a golden balance between meticulous composition and spontaneous improvisation — and we can't wait to share this ritual with you. Unwritten Portraits

Unwritten portraits is a participative performance based on improvisation, engaging artists from different fields. The main task is to portray people from the audience, with sketches/ paintings, music and movement. The current formation consists of 2 painters, 2 musicians and a dancer. Each painting/portrait lasts from 3 to 8 minutes. The finished paintings are gifted to the portrayed person at the end of the performance. His setup as a musician in this project is: Lute with FX, synth, radio and various small objects/instruments.
